THE DAUGHTER OF DAWN is a rediscovered narrative film featuring White Parker and Wanada Parker, the son and daughter of legendary Comanche chief Quanah Parker. The Texas Film Company (based in Austin) shot the film in the Wichita Mountains of Oklahoma in 1920 (May-July) with a cast of over 300 members of the Comanche and Kiowa tribes. For this docudrama, the cast members provided their own clothing, teepees, and personal items.
